THE 2001-02 BOWL CHAMPIONSHIP SERIES

FORMATION

Prior to the 1998 football regular season, the FedEx Orange, Nokia Sugar, Rose, and Tostitos Fiesta Bowls joined with the Atlantic Coast, Big East Football, Big 12, Big Ten, Pacific-10 and Southeastern Conferences and the University of Notre Dame to form the Bowl Championship Series (BCS).

The BCS was established to determine the national champion for college football while maintaining and enhancing the bowl system which has provided significant support to college football for nearly a century. The BCS has quickly become a showcase for the sport, matching the premier teams of any particular year in the culminating games of the season.

2001 CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Last season, number one-ranked Oklahoma defeated number two-ranked Florida State, 13-2, in the FedEx Orange Bowl before a sellout crowd of 76,835. The Rose Bowl and Tostitos Fiesta bowls were also completely sold out. The overall television ratings for the four BCS games climbed 5.5 percent and the 17.8 rating on ABC-TV for the championship game was the highest-rated televised sporting event outside the Super Bowl and the NFL playoff games.

2002 SELECTION ORDER

This season the national championship game will be played January 3, 8:00 pm, in the Rose Bowl at Pasadena, Calif., on ABC-TV. This is the first time the Rose Bowl will host the BCS National Championship contest. Outside the Rose Bowl, which will match the No. 1 and No. 2 ranked BCS teams, the other games use regional consideration regarding team selection. Specifically, the Nokia Sugar Bowl played January 1, 2002, at 8:30 p.m., will host the SEC champion; the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl played January 1, 2002, at 5:00 p.m., will host the Big 12 champion; and the FedEx Orange Bowl played January 2, 2002, 8:00 p.m., shall host either the ACC or Big East Football champion, should those teams not be ranked No. 1 or No. 2. These games also will be broadcast by ABC Sports. In addition, for this year and in 2006 when the Rose Bowl hosts the national championship game, the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl will host the Pac-10 champion should it not be ranked No. 1 or No. 2. If this occurs and the Big 12 champion is not ranked No. 1 or No. 2, it shall have the option of staying in the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl or going into the BCS at-large pool.

There may be several occasions when the regional tie-ins, mentioned above, will not be kept. The criteria for moving host teams to another bowl include:

- (1) the same team hosting the same BCS Bowl for two consecutive years;
- (2) two teams that played against one another in the most recently completed college football season will be paired against one another in a bowl;
- (3) the same two teams would play against each other in a Bowl game for two consecutive years; and
- (4) an alternative pairing would have greater appeal to college football fans.

If a BCS bowl loses a host team to the National Championship Game, then such BCS bowl shall be the first to select a replacement team from the pool of eligible teams. If two BCS bowls lose their host teams to the National Championship Game, the BCS bowl losing the highest ranked team would have the first at-large selection, followed by the BCS bowl that lost the second-ranked team. Bowls cannot select a "host" team from another BCS bowl.

Any BCS bowl game(s) still remaining unfilled will submit to the BCS a listing of its top three team selections to fill its at-large slot. Any conference champion not already placed in a bowl game must be listed among such bowl game's first two selections. Each BCS bowl will then be given its highest preference of teams.

In a situation where two or more bowls select the same team(s) with their choices, the priority of selection would be the following:

- (1) the bowl making the larger per team payment shall be given first preference;
- (2) the bowl not getting first priority in the previous year, would be given first preference.

At the conclusion of these procedures, the pairings established by the BCS bowls may be adjusted by the BCS, in consultation with the BCS bowls and ABC, in the interest of creating the most exciting and interesting post-season matchups possible.

ELIGIBLE TEAMS

The pool of eligible teams, established after the final BCS standings released December 2, 2001, shall consist of the conference champions of the Atlantic Coast, Big East Football, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10, and Southeastern Conferences whose teams will be guaranteed berths; teams that have won at least nine regular season college football games (not including wins in exempt games) and are ranked among the Top 12 in the final BCS standings. A win versus a Division I-AA opponent may be counted once in four years to reach the required nine wins.

Also, any Division IA independent team or champion of Conference USA, the Mid-American, Mountain West or Western Athletic conferences will be guaranteed a slot in one of the four BCS games should that team be ranked sixth or higher in the final BCS Standings unless more than two teams meet this criteria. Should more than two be ranked in the top six of the standings, the BCS bowl selecting will have its choice of any two from that group.

The automatic selection of the original BCS conference champions is subject to review and possible loss of automatic selection by the BCS should the conference champion not have an average ranking of 12 or higher over a four-year period.

Automatic Qualification for Certain At-Large Teams

Each year there will be two At-Large Teams selected by the BCS Bowls and, in most years, the BCS Bowls will not be required to select any particular At-Large team. However, in some instances, an At-Large team may earn automatic selection. Those cases are listed below:

- 1) any At-Large team ranked No. 1 or No. 2 in the final BCS Standings shall play in the BCS National Championship Game. If both the No. 1 and No. 2 teams in the BCS Standings are At-Large teams, those teams shall play in the national championship game;
- 2) any team from a non-BCS conference or an independent institution, which is ranked three through six in the BCS Standings, shall qualify for a guaranteed selection in one of the BCS games. If one or more teams other than Notre Dame qualify for automatic selection, Notre Dame shall also qualify provided it is ranked in the top ten in the BCS Standings or has a record of at least nine wins, not including exempted games;
- 3) the Bowls shall select from those teams that qualify in (2) above should insufficient slots be available;
- 4) if any At-Large slots remain unfilled after satisfying the criteria in (2) above; and the team ranked three in the BCS Standings is an At-Large team, then the team ranked three in the BCS Standings shall automatically fill one At-Large slot and shall play in one of the BCS Bowls;
- 5) if any At-Large slots remain unfilled after satisfying the criteria in (2) and no at-large team qualifies for automatic selection under (4) above; and the team ranked four in the BCS Standings is an At-Large team, then the team ranked four in the BCS Standings shall automatically fill one At-Large slot and shall play in one of the BCS Bowls.

THE BCS STANDINGS

COMPILATION OF STANDINGS

The BCS Standings, since the beginning of the 2000 regular season, have been compiled by the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame.

A statistical rating system will determine which teams will participate in the Bowl Championship Series. The ranking system will consist of five major components: subjective polls of the writers and coaches, computer rankings, schedule strength, team record and quality wins versus top 15 ranked teams in the weekly BCS standings. The two teams which have the lowest point total in the five categories will play in the national championship game. The standings will be calculated from the results of all regular season games including exempt games and conference championship games.

POLLS

The poll component will be calculated based on the average of the ranking of each team in the Associated Press media poll and the USA Today/ESPN coaches poll. The rankings of each team will be added and divided by two. For example, a team ranked number one in one poll and number two in the other poll would receive 1.5 points in this component. ($1+2 = 3 / 2 = 1.5$)

COMPUTER RANKINGS

The second component will consist of eight computer rankings which are published in major media outlets. The computer rankings will be - Jeff Sagarin (published in USA Today), the Seattle Times, Dr. Peter Wolfe, Richard Billingsley, Wes Colley, Kenneth Massey, David Rothman and Matthews/Scripps-Howard. The computer component will be determined by averaging the six intermediate computer rankings. The highest (best) and lowest (worst) computer ranking will be disregarded. For example, if a team is ranked first in four polls, second in three polls and third in another, one of the rankings in which the team is ranked first and the ranking in which the team is third will be disregarded and the remaining six polls will be added and divided by six ($1, 1, 2, 2, 2 = 9/6 = 1.50$)

STRENGTH OF SCHEDULE

The third component will be the team's strength of schedule. This component is calculated by determining the cumulative won/loss records of the team's opponents and the cumulative won/loss records of the teams' opponents' opponents. The formula shall be weighted two-thirds ($66 \frac{2}{3}\%$) for the opponent's record and one-third ($33 \frac{1}{3}\%$) for the opponents' opponents' record. The team's schedule strength shall be calculated to determine in which quartile it will rank: 1-25; 26-50; 51-75; 76-100 and shall be further quantified by its ranking within each quartile (divided by 25). For example, if a team's schedule strength rating is 28th in the nation, that team would receive 1.12 points ($28/25 = 1.12$). Should a team play a Division I-AA opponent, only the losses of the Division I-AA team or the wins of that team against a Division I-A team be used in determining the opponent's record or the opponent's opponents' record.

TEAM RECORD

This component shall evaluate the team's won/loss record. Each loss during the season will represent one point in this component.

QUALITY WINS

The quality win component will reward to varying degrees teams that defeat opponents ranked among the top 15 in the weekly BCS standings. A team that beats the No. 1 ranked team will have 1.5 points deducted from its BCS score. A team that beats the No. 15 ranked team will have 0.1 points deducted from its score. If a team defeats a top-15 BCS team twice in one season, the victorious team shall receive quality win points only once. The scale is listed below:

Rank	Pts. Deducted	Rank	Pts. Deducted	Rank	Pts. Deducted
1	1.5	6	1.0	11	0.5
2	1.4	7	0.9	12	0.4
3	1.3	8	0.8	13	0.3
4	1.2	9	0.7	14	0.2
5	1.1	10	0.6	15	0.1

All five components shall be added together for a total rating. The team with the lowest point total shall rank first in the BCS Standings. The first BCS Standings of the 2001 season will be released on Monday, October 15. The complete BCS standings will be available at Bowl Championship Series Online (www.abccfb.com) beginning Oct. 15. This system will be utilized to select the teams that will participate in the championship game of the Bowl Championship Series; to determine any independent or team from a conference without an automatic selection which shall qualify for a guaranteed selection in one of the games of the Bowl Championship Series; to determine other automatic selections; and establish the pool of eligible teams for at-large selection.

2002 BCS REVENUE DISTRIBUTION

The Bowl Championship Series receives revenue from two sources – ABC Sports and the host bowl sites. The total revenue for the 2002 BCS games is projected to be $75,022,000. The BCS will contribute $4.2 million to other Division IA and IAA conferences to be used in support of the overall health of college football. In addition, the BCS will pay a $100,000 stipend to the National Football Foundation and College Hall of Fame for administering the weekly BCS Standings. At the end of the eight-year BCS contract, over $40 million will be distributed to non-BCS conferences.

Once the annual payments are made to non-BCS conferences and the NFF&CHF, the remaining monies are initially split into six equal base shares (in 2002 each base share is worth $11,787,000) for the participants of the FedEx Orange Bowl, Nokia Sugar Bowl and Tostitos Fiesta Bowl. [The Rose Bowl pays its participants directly through a separate contractual arrangement.] However, should one or more conferences have more than one team participate in the BCS games, including the Rose Bowl, then the second participant shall not receive a full share, but instead a reduced payment of $6,000,000. The difference between the full share payment, $11,787,000, and the second share payment of $6,000,000 ($5,787,000) is then divided among the BCS conferences that do not have two participants.

This formula allows for some fluctuation in payouts depending on the participants in the BCS games. The minimum payout would be $11,787,000 and that would occur if six different conferences or independent institutions were represented in the Tostitos Fiesta, Nokia Sugar, and FedEx Orange Bowls. However, should no one outside the BCS conferences be selected, the two BCS conferences with two representatives would receive $17,787,000 and the other four BCS conferences would receive $14,680,500.

The sample distribution listed below is based on the same teams participating in the BCS game as in 2001.

SAMPLE 2002 BCS DISTRIBUTION (Assuming same teams selected as in 2001)

Total Revenue:	$75,022,000
Less Payments to NFFCHF & Conferences:	$4,300,000
Net to BCS:	$70,722,000
(Amount to Six Teams: $11,787,000 (70,722,000 divided by 6 teams))
Distribution:
ACC (Florida State)	11,787,000 + 1,157,400 = 12,944,400
Big 12 (Oklahoma)	11,787,000 + 1,157,400 = 12,944,400
SEC (Florida)	11,787,000 + 1,157,400 = 12,944,400
Big East (Miami)	11,787,000 + 1,157,400 = 12,944,400
Notre Dame	11,787,000
Pac-10 +(Washington, Oregon State)	6,000,000
Big 10 (Purdue) +	1,157,400
Total:	$70,722,000

 NOTE: Second team from same BCS conference receives $6,000,000

Additional dollars (11,787,000 - 6,000,000 = $5,787,000) are to be divided among the five other BCS conference representatives without two teams in BCS ($1,157,400 per team)

+ Big Ten and Pac-10 are paid directly by Rose Bowl for participation of Purdue and Washington

HISTORY OF THE BCS

The Bowl Championship Series was formed in 1998 following the termination of the three-year old Bowl Alliance agreement. The BCS was created as a mechanism for providing college football with a guaranteed matchup between college football's top two teams in a true national championship game.

In the first BCS title game, No. 1 Tennessee defeated No. 2 Florida State, 23-16, in the Tostitos Fiesta Bowl. Two years ago, No. 1 Florida State defeated No. 2 Virginia Tech 46-29 in the Nokia Sugar Bowl. Last year, No. 1 Oklahoma defeated No. 2 Florida State 13-2 in the FedEx Orange Bowl.

The BCS is a spinoff of the Bowl Alliance and Bowl Coalition. The Alliance was formed in 1995 and continued for three seasons. It was created to provide the best possible bowl games, while improving the likelihood of a No. 1 vs. No. 2 matchup by eliminating conference tie-ins to particular bowls.

The Alliance system was designed to allow the champions of the Atlantic Coast, the Big East, the Southeastern and Big 12 Conferences along with two highly-ranked at-large teams to be matched in three alliance bowls (Tostitos Fiesta, Nokia Sugar and FedEx Orange). The Pac-10 and Big Ten champions and the Rose Bowl were not part of this agreement.

The Bowl Alliance instituted two major changes from its predecessor the Bowl Coalition which enhanced the opportunity to produce a national championship game each year. The Alliance plan included two at-large spots which were open to all Division I-A teams who qualified by achieving a minimum of eight regular season wins (or were ranked in the top 12 or no lower than the lowest ranked conference champion chosen to participate in the Alliance) and it eliminated conference champion tie-ins in the Alliance bowls to enable those bowls the flexibility to choose the best match-ups from the available pool of eligible teams.

In the first year of the Bowl Alliance, following the 1995 regular season, the Southwest Conference champion was also insured a spot. Thus, only one at-large spot was available and that was guaranteed to Notre Dame, providing the Irish finished among the nation's top ten teams in either the Associated Press or USA Today/CNN regular season polls.

Prior to the Bowl Alliance, the Bowl Coalition was in place for three years. The Coalition was developed through a lengthy series of meetings in 1991 and early 1992 in an effort to bring order to a disruptive bowl system which had begun to extend post-season bids in early November - a full three to four weeks before the end of the regular season. The bowl system up until that time had produced just eight games matching No. 1 and No. 2 in the previous 56 years.

In existence for the post-seasons of 1992 through 1994, the Coalition provided a structure which enabled the champions of the Big East and Atlantic Coast Conferences and Notre Dame to meet either the champion of the Big Eight in the FedEx Orange Bowl, Southeastern in the Nokia Sugar Bowl or Southwest in the Cotton Bowl.

In addition, had the champions of the Big East and ACC or Notre Dame been ranked number one and two during any of those three seasons, they would have met in the Fiesta Bowl for the national championship. Their vacated spots in either the Orange, Sugar or Cotton Bowls would have been filled from a pool of at-large teams made up of the number two teams from the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Eight, Pac-10, Southeastern and Southwest Conferences. To guarantee those at-large teams a post-season game, the Coalition contracted with the Gator and John Hancock Bowls to provide three additional slots for number two teams.

The Coalition was a nine-year contractual agreement, subject to review every three years. After the first three years, the parties agreed to end the agreement in favor of an improved Alliance system.
